Make A Way With Renforce

May is our time where preparation turns into placement, and our community comes together to transform readiness into real opportunities and outcomes for those we serve. At ReNforce, this is where the work comes to life, not just within our programs, but through the strength of our community.

ReNforce is the community. It is the people we serve, the employers who open their doors, the partners who stand with us, and the supporters who believe in second chances. Together, we are creating pathways that move individuals from readiness into real opportunities for employment, stability, and growth.

Making a way means removing barriers, building connections, and ensuring that justice-impacted individuals are not just prepared, but placed in positions where they can succeed long term. It is about turning effort into outcomes and support into sustainable progress.

As we continue this work, I invite you to be part of what it takes to make a way. When we show up together, we do not just create opportunity, we become it.

With purpose,

Charlotte Garnes
